AFGHANISTAN

- Panetta: Insurgency rising because of weak political institutions and failing economy; Gates rules out any reconciliation with the Taliban till US-led forces gain decisive edge; 12 militants killed in US air strike in Ghazni; Eikenberry promises change in tactics to prevent civilian casualties; Iran, Pakistan, Afghanistan sign the 'Tehran Statement'; US forces seize large amounts of drugs in Helmand province

In an address to a think tank in Los Angeles during the week, CIA Director Leon Panetta stated that the insurgency in Afghanistan led by the Taliban was rising because of weak political institutions and a failing economy. Apart from the military surge, Panetta also called for building up the coalition's intelligence capabilities, an 'intelligence surge,' to help protect coalition forces as well as help establish a durable peace in the country.<sup>1</sup>

US Defence Secretary Robert Gates meanwhile, in an interview with NBC, ruled out any reconciliation with the Taliban insurgents till the US-led international forces gained a decisive edge over them.<sup>2</sup> Gates's assertion was made even as New York Times suggested that representatives of some Taliban factions were negotiating through intermediaries with the Afghan government for some kind of a peace accord on the condition that US forces withdraw from the country.<sup>3</sup>

A dozen Taliban insurgents were killed and four others wounded during a night time air strike by the US-led coalition forces in the volatile southern Ghazni province on May 20.<sup>4</sup> The new US ambassador to Afghanistan, Lt. Gen. Karl W. Eikenberry, interacting with the US air strike survivors of Farah province, promised that coalition forces would do their best and change tactics in order to prevent further civilian casualties in operations against insurgents.<sup>5</sup>

At the trilateral regional summit in Tehran on May 24, involving Iran, Afghanistan and Pakistan, President's Karzai, Ahmadinejad, and Zardari signed the 'Tehran Statement' which committed the three nations to work together to fight Islamic extremism and stop drug smuggling across their borders. The declaration however did not outline any specific actions.<sup>6</sup>

US forces on their part also claimed that in operations in the Helmand province of Southern Afghanistan, large amounts of drugs were seized, including 17 tons of black tar opium, 74 tons of opium poppy seeds, 400lbs of hashish and 443lbs of heroin along with tons of bomb-making equipment and heroin-processing chemicals.<sup>7</sup>

Secretary of State Hillary Clinton stated at a press conference on May 19 that $110 million was being granted to Pakistan as 'emergency aid' to provide amenities for the civilians affected by the army operations in Swat, Buner and Dir. Ms. Clinton added that the aid being provided was important as the rapid proliferation of extremism in Pakistan was also a threat to US security.<sup>8</sup>

The UN on its part pledged $543 million for the two million refugees displaced due to security operations against the Taliban. UN Humanitarian Coordinator in Pakistan, Martin Mogwanja admitted that the scale of civilian displacement was "extraordinary in terms of size and speed and has caused incredible suffering."<sup>9</sup> President Zardari also unveiled a package of $8 billion for the internally displaced people (IDPs) and added that "victory is the only option."<sup>10</sup>

Sunil Mitra, Additional Chief Secretary for the state told reporters that West Bengal had plans to add 2,470 MW of power to the 4,200 already installed by 2012.<sup>13</sup> The West Bengal State Electricity Distribution Company Ltd (WESEDCL) was designated as the nodal agency for the proposed projects in Bhutan.

Bangladesh President Zillur Rahman also stated that Bhutan would be a potential supplier in overcoming the power needs of his country. Mr. Rehman noted that economic ties between the two countries were yet to reach a "satisfactory level" despite the excellent status of the bilateral relations.<sup>14</sup>

A team from the UNHCR along with some donor representatives visited refugee camps in Eastern Nepal. The refugees were assured that they were free to choose between repatriation and resettlement.<sup>16</sup>

In other developments, private radio stations in Thimphu have joined hands with a Swiss national to start a 24-hour live online station. The portal is intended to help spread Bhutanese culture and language.

SRI LANKA

- Prabakaran reported killed in military operations; Defence Secretary Rajapaksa: Army operations were conducted against terrorists; Russia, China, Japan and Vietnam express interest in assisting in rehabilitation and resettlement efforts

Sri Lankan government and LTTE sources indicated that LTTE leader Velupillai Prabhakaran was dead. LTTE spokesperson Selvarasa Pathmanathan stated that the organisation would now employ “non-violent methods to fight for Tamil cause.”<sup>17</sup> Pathmanathan, who heads the LTTE's international relations wing, stated that though the Sri Lankan government has been successful in ousting the LTTE, it should realise that the victory of the Sri Lankan Army was a “hollow victory” and added that the government had lost the trust of Tamilians.<sup>18</sup>

Government sources meanwhile indicated that it could take as long as two years for the rehabilitation of displaced people inside the country.<sup>19</sup> The government had earlier stated that most of the displaced civilians would be resettled by the end of the year.<sup>20</sup>

Defence Secretary Gotabhaya Rajapaksa told reporters that the Sri Lankan army operations were against terrorists and that the LTTE had eliminated moderate Tamil political leadership and destroyed Tamilian culture since it came into existence. He also urged that Sri Lanka should aspire to be a country where people from all communities, religions and ethnicities could co-exist together.<sup>21</sup>

In other developments, countries like Russia, China, Japan and Vietnam have expressed their interest in assisting Colombo in its rehabilitation and resettlement efforts.

Both countries signed energy deals to jointly develop oil and gas fields in Siberia and pledged to resolve outstanding territorial disputes between them, especially over the islands known in Japan as the Northern Territories and in Russia as the Southern Kurils. They also signed an agreement to cooperate in civilian nuclear energy.<sup>25</sup>

Singapore's President S.R. Nathan meanwhile urged Japan to play a more active role in Southeast Asia. During his meeting with Japanese Prime Minister Taro Aso, Nathan pointed out Japan's legacy in the region through out the 60s and 70s and urged Japan to play a more active role despite the difficult economic situation it was currently facing.<sup>26</sup>

As North Korea continues its saber-rattling, reports indicated that Washington has so far been reluctant to allow Tokyo to purchase America's most advanced fighter aircraft, the F-22 Raptor.<sup>28</sup> Other factors weighing against the purchase included the high cost of the aircraft which if bought could push Japanese defence expenditure above the 1 per cent of the GDP mark, US Congress regulations which prevent the sale of this aircraft to even allies, among other factors.

In other developments, Japan and Canada have signed an agreement which permits Canadian military planes to stop at a Japanese Air Self-Defense Force base in Hokkaido for refueling and other activities before heading to disaster-hit areas in other Asian countries for relief operations.<sup>29</sup>

IRAN

- Iran test-fires Sejil-2 surface-to-surface missile; Obama: US “not going to have talks forever”; Guardian Council approves four candidates for June 12 presidential elections; Reformists hope for high turnout

President Ahmadinejad announced that Iran had test-fired an upgraded surface-to-surface missile, the Sejil-2, with a range of about 1,200 miles which made it capable of striking Israel and American bases in the Persian Gulf. He was speaking during a visit to Semnan Province in northern Iran. Reports noted that the announcement was likely to reinforce Israeli concerns about Iran's regional intentions.

US President Barack Obama meanwhile, after talks with the visiting Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu stated that the US expected to know by the end of the year whether Iran was making “a good-faith effort to resolve differences” in talks aimed at ending its nuclear program. Adding that the US was “not going to have talks forever,” Obama noted that he did not intend to foreclose “a range of steps” if Iran did not cooperate.<sup>30</sup>

Four candidates, including Mr. Ahmadinejad were cleared by the 12-member Guardian Council to stand in the June 12 presidential elections. The other three candidates are former prime minister Mir Hossein Mousavi, ex-parliament speaker Mehdi Karroubi and the former head of the Revolutionary Guards, Mohsen Rezai. A total of 475 Iranians, including 42 women, had registered as prospective candidates for the elections. Mousavi, a reformist, is being seen as the main opponent to Ahmadinejad. While Karroubi has promised to follow 'moderate' economic reforms, Rezai has promised to tackle poverty, high prices and unemployment. In the 2005 elections, only eight candidates out of the 1,014 who had registered were approved by the council, and only seven of them eventually fought the elections.<sup>32</sup>

IRAQ

- Suicide bombs kill 21 and wound 34 in Shiite neighbourhood of Baghdad

Three suicide bombings, in the largely Shiite neighborhood of Shula on May 23 killed at least 21 people and wounded more than 50 others. US soldiers, Iraqi police officers, and members of the US-allied Awakening Councils were targeted. The attacks followed a car bombing near a popular restaurant in the western part of Baghdad that killed up to 40 people.

Awakening Council members, Sunni insurgents who have been allied with the US, had in recent times become a primary target of insurgent groups operating in Iraq. These attacks were the first major attack since a series of explosions in the last week of April left more than 160 dead. Most of these attacks took place in predominately Shiite areas, raising fears that insurgents were trying to incite sectarian violence. Prime Minister Nuri al-Maliki had blamed loyalists from the government of Saddam Hussein for the April attacks.<sup>33</sup>

In other development, a suicide car bomb struck a US military patrol in Iraq's northern city of Mosul on May 21 wounding at least 34 bystanders.

UAE

- Obama approves civilian nuclear energy deal with UAE

US President Barack Obama on May 21 approved a civilian nuclear cooperation agreement with the United Arab Emirates (UAE). The deal, the '123 Agreement' was initially negotiated by the Bush administration and was later amended slightly by the new government. The bill has now been sent to the US Congress for approval.

Foreign Minister of UAE, Sheikh Abdullah bin Zayed stated that under the terms of the agreement, the UAE "will gain access to significant capabilities and experience in the peaceful use of nuclear energy. This will allow the UAE to develop its civilian nuclear programme to the highest standards of safety, security and non proliferation. The agreement will also open opportunities for US firms to be active participants in the UAE nuclear energy programme."<sup>34</sup>

On its part, the UAE has assured that it does not intend to develop its own enrichment and reprocessing capability and has pledged to work closely with the IAEA and to follow its recommendations. The US State Department, in a statement noted that the Agreement "serves as a model for states in the region in developing nuclear energy for peaceful purposes with the full confidence of the international community. This approach stands in direct contrast to Iran's nuclear program, which remains a matter of grave concern to the international community."<sup>35</sup>

Reports noted that the UK Royal Navy has succeeded in launching over-the-horizon military capability of unmanned, autonomous platforms. The device known as autonomous underwater vehicles (AUVs) or unmanned underwater vehicles (UUVs) would enable the navy personnel to carry search operation without involving human operators. These vehicles are supposed to fulfill wide range of maritime defence requirements such as surveillance and reconnaissance (ISR), intelligence, mine countermeasures (MCM), and even weapons delivery.<sup>43</sup>

III. INTERNAL SECURITY REVIEW

JAMMU AND KASHMIR

- Infiltration bid foiled along LoC in Kupwara district; PoK truck drivers smuggling SIM cards into Kashmir

Security forces foiled an infiltration bid along the Line of Control (LoC) in Kupwara district on May 21 by killing three terrorists attempting to sneak into the Valley. A defence spokesman told local media that troops guarding the LoC in Tangdhar area of Kupwara district observed movement of some terrorists and immediately laid multiple ambushes. As soon as the heavily-armed infiltrators crossed into the Indian side, they were challenged by the troops resulting in a fierce gun battle.<sup>44</sup>

Meanwhile, for the first time since the launch of cross-LoC trade on October 2008, two truck drivers from Pakistan-occupied-Kashmir (PoK) were quizzed on May 21 for their suspected militant links after the recovery of four SIM cards of two different telecom companies of Pakistan from their possession. Reports noted that the recovery of SIM cards from PoK drivers has been a cause of concern among the security agencies.<sup>45</sup>

MAOIST INSURGENCY

- Maoists kill sixteen police personnel in Maharashtra

Maoist guerrillas ambushed a police team on May 16 after luring them into the jungles of Gadchiroli district in Maharashtra, killing 16 of them. The police party had gone to the hills to clear the Dhanora-Murumgaon road, which was blocked by the Maoists by felling trees. As the police team reached the spot and started clearing the roads, the guerrillas hiding in the forest opened indiscriminate fire. Police personnel returned the fire and in the ensuing gun battle, 16 police personnel lost their lives.<sup>46</sup>

NORTH EAST DEVELOPMENTS

- Six NDFB militants killed in Assam; NSCN(IM) expanding its territorial influence in Assam and Arunachal Pradesh; Joint Monitoring Group set up for peace talks with KCP(MC) Lallumba group in Manipur

Security forces gunned down six NDFB militants in Assam's Karbi Anglong district on May 19. militants were killed. Earlier on May 18, two NDFB militants were killed in Chirang district.<sup>47</sup>

In Assam's NC Hills district, four Dimasas were gunned down by unidentified gunmen on May 19. Police sources indicated that the killings could be the fallout of ethnic clashes between the Dimasas and the Zeme Nagas.<sup>48</sup>

Reports meanwhile noted that the NSCN-IM had launched a recruitment drive in Assam in a bid to expand its territorial influence. The NSCN-IM's plan came to light after security forces busted its temporary camp in Assam's Dhemaji district on May 17 and apprehended two of its cadres from Nagaland. Sources also indicated that many youths from West Siang district in Arunachal Pradesh and the bordering areas of Assam had joined the NSCN-IM recently and were being trained at Camp Hebron, the NSCN general headquarters located in Dimapur. Government sources in Arunachal Pradesh cautioned that if the activities of the outfit were not checked, the state could turn into a haven for the militant outfit.<sup>49</sup>

In Manipur meanwhile, in order to facilitate tripartite talks between the Centre, the State Government and the KCP(MC) Lallumba group, a Joint Monitoring Group was set up on May 20.<sup>50</sup>
